Peter Smith is an employ. When he was younger he went to a secondary modern school. " School? I think it was boring. I left it when I was 15 and I was glad to get out. I knew exactly what I wanted to do. I wanted to earn a living. Every term we got a report from school. My parents always got angry because I always had low marks. Sometimes I got low marks because I was fed up, and I didn't like the teachers. Besides, I hated school prefects who were like policemen. Some of them were worse than teachers. If you do something wrong, they send you to the headmaster or make you learn poetry by heart or write lines."

Alicia Cooper is a manager of a supermarket.

"I was at a big comprehensive school. And because it was so big there was a large choice of subjects and I liked that. Besides, the teaching was very good and there were lots of activities. I played in the school orchestra and helped to produce the school newspaper. I think it was fantastic! A lot of my friends left school at 16, and now they regret it. They wish they remained longer."
